

Huston a Guest on NPR's Science Friday, 7/23

John on the Greenland ice cap in seal skin, 5/05.

Date: July 22, 2010

John Huston was interviewed on National Public Radio's Science Friday on July 23rd.

John appeared on Science Friday, hosted by Ira Flatow, last Friday (this is one of his favorite radio shows!).

Click here to listen to the podcast. John joins the show at 11:25 of the podcast. You may have to listen to the 10 second commercial that opens the podcast before you can move later in the show.

John discussed his experiences on the 2005 modern Amundsen team that re-ran the original race for the South Pole for a BBC/History Channel documentary. Huston will join host Ira Flatow, along with the other guest Dr. Ross MacPhee, curator of an American Museum of Natural History exhibit “Race to the End of the Earth”.

Click here to read the Science Friday blog about the show.

More to come soon on the upcoming book and magazine article. Victorinox North Pole 09 Team, John Huston & Tyler Fish